

Of all the sights Marianne had painted, she knew that this plant would astonish the scientists back at home. So, with her paint-covered brushes and worn-out sketchbooks, she headed to the City of London, and was met with triumphant acclaim!

And in her honour they named it...

She packed her little suitcase with paintbrushes and sketchbooks, a flask of tea, and one of her favourite cheese and pickle sandwiches, and boarded the next ship to America.

An illustration of a man in a dark suit and hat and a child in a yellow raincoat dancing in the rain. They are positioned around a green street lamp. The man is holding a red umbrella, and the child is holding a blue umbrella. The scene is set on a sidewalk with a street lamp. In the background, there are faint silhouettes of other people with umbrellas and a camera on a tripod. The sky is blue with white rain streaks and a white bird flying. The overall mood is joyful and whimsical.
